City to Solicit Bids for Youth Center Renovations, Heating System

by Diane Oberg

A women's locker room will be constructed in the Youth Center within the next six months following the Greenbelt City Council's approval of the project plans. At its February 8 regular meeting, council authorized the city staff to solicit bids for renovating the Youth Center. The project, estimated to cost $50,000, includes creating a women's locker room, renovating the men's locker room and replacing the heating system with a combined heating and air conditioning system.

The estimate exceeds the amount budgeted for the work. City Director of Planning and Development Celia Wilson attributes the overage to the decision to replace the heating system. She notes that a number of heating systems in the building have already failed.

Wilson expects the work to take three to four months. Between the start of construction and the completion of the bathroom renovations, the free weight room will not be available. When the bathroom work is complete, which is expected by July 1, the free weight room will be relocated there.

DiCamillo Tract

Council joined the National Park Service (NPS) in objecting to plans to develop the DiCamillo tract and went one step further to ask that the federal government buy the land for Greenbelt Park. The 7.75 acre property is located between Good Luck Road and the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and is bounded on three sides by the park.

Lynn Pilgrim, NPS site manager for the B-W Parkway and Greenbelt Park, said that the planned development of 31 single family homes would be a visual intrusion into the park. She noted that in one section the planned development would be 10 feet from the horse trail.

Another concern, said Pilgrim, was the difficulty of preventing homeowners in such a development from extending their properties onto the park grounds. She does not have the resources to properly enforce park boundaries, she said.

Pilgrim charged that the development is just barely accommodated by the "rolling site." Stormwater outfall would flow into Deep Creek, reducing the water quality of what she called a "relatively pristine" urban waterway.

She acknowledged that the property owner has the right to develop the property. The NPS is working with the developer to obtain a better proposal that meets the needs of NPS and the owner.

Lake Park Lease

Council directed staff to consult with the city solicitor to develop an appropriate way to grant relief to the Greers, who run the lake park concession stand. The relief discussed included waiving past due payments for the franchise fee and waiving the requirement that the Greers pay the electric bill for the stand. Action is expected at the February 22 regular council meeting.

Employee Recognition

City Manager Daniel Hobbs recognized Assistant City Treasurer Jeff Williams and Accounts Clerk Doriss Medford for their work in finding a better way to process the city payroll. Hobbs estimated they had saved the city $7,000. Each received an executive portfolio with calculator.

Council member Antoinette Bram and Mayor Gil Weidenfeld praised the police and public works departments for their work in facilitating the funeral of Tillie Wetter.

Car Thefts

Sheldon Goldberg of the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee reported a recent rise in car thefts in Greenbelt East. Hobbs said that city police were aware of the problem and that there has been a pattern in the thefts, which primarily involved Honda vehicles.

Senior Performers Needed for Show

The Arts Center's Senior Talent Show will be held at the Green Ridge House on May 1. Producer Celia Brooks is looking for seniors who sing, dance, play a musical instrument, tell jokes and stories, or perform dramatic readings or magic acts. Again variety and talent are the only criteria. Call Brooks at 345-8745 to sign up for the show.

increase in traffic more than crime, Chief Craze added that the Prince Georges County police would be utilized if significant crime problems begin to develop at the station.

The panel also answered questions about the new community-oriented police officer program. The federally sponsored program, assigns police officers to specific geographical areas to patrol on a regular basis. According to Lindsey the program has resulted in a 20 percent drop in the crime rate in areas currently using the program. Noting County Executive Parris Glendening's support for the program, panel speakers are anticipating that 101 more officers will be added to the program by 1995.

METRO Concerns

Joining Williams on the panel were Chiefs of Police for Greenbelt and Berwyn Heights James Craze and Thomas Stoner, as well as Captains C. "Bud" Price and John C. Lindsey of the Prince Georges County Police Department. Officials responded to safety concerns over Metro's Greenbelt station, which is scheduled to open at the end of the year, by noting that the station will be under the jurisdiction of the Greenbelt police force and supplemented by Metro's Transit police. Expressing his main concern with the station as an

My Point of View

On Trails Being Natural

by James Giese

There has been a lot of advocacy in recent years for "natural pathways." To me this is an oxymoron, because paths are for the most part not natural, but created by humans. Of course, a few of the more broad minded among us consider humans to be a part of nature, but at least for this discourse, let us assume that we are not.

In a pristine forest, the surface of the ground is thickly covered with a layer of decomposing humus and leaves or needles not yet decomposed. Growing from this layer and the soil below you will find, depending on forest conditions, mature and young trees and an understory of shrubs, ferns and other small vegetation. The extensive root system stabilizes the soil and humus on slopes.

Foot Trails

Unfortunately, it takes very little usage as a trail by humans before this natural surface is worn away, exposing the soil underneath and killing off the system of roots. Soils in Greenbelt tend to range from clay to sand. There is very little rocky material, and what there is, is a soft sandstone. Without the cover of humus and roots, the soil becomes unstable, is subject to erosion, and, if clay, can become a quagmire in the winter or when there is a lot of rain. Worn foot trails can be found throughout the woodlands of Greenbelt. They constitute barren gouges across the forest floor, and on hillsides become gullies manufacturing sediment for our streams and exposing the deeper roots of our mature trees.

Wood Chips

One way to improve upon these "natural trails" is to cover them with a "natural material." I would think that a "natural material" is one that is in a natural condition and has not been manufactured or processed. However, the material most commonly mentioned is wood chips. Wood chips have been manufactured by chopping up trees, most of which have been cut down while still alive.

As a path surface, wood chips can curtail erosion if the slope is not too steep and eliminate muddy conditions if the path is not too wet. However, on steeper slopes it will quickly wash away and elsewhere foot traffic will wear it down. Mother Nature will also do her bit to decompose it into humus. At best, a layer of wood chips is good for one year and often not that long. Then it is time to chop down more trees.

Gravel and Crushed Stone

Some people refer to gravel as a natural material. In this category, bank run gravel is the most natural. This material is found in stream channels and in areas that once were stream channels. It ranges in size from sand to small boulders in its fully natural state. The rocks are rounded and smooth due to stream erosion. Bank run gravel could simply be scooped up at its source and spread out over the path. However this gravel is more apt to be processed by washing away the sand and by running it through sieves to eliminate either larger or smaller sized stones.

While bank run gravel provides a more stable surface, it is not without problems. The finer material erodes. The smooth rounded surfaces prevent the gravel from binding and walking on it can cause it to work into the soil. The larger rocks are uncomfortable to step on.

Another kind of rock that can be used is crushed stone, which is manufactured by crushing mined rock. By sieving, it can be made uniform in size. Crushed stone can be rolled and compacted into a fairly smooth hard surface that is quite stable. It is still subject to erosion and through use will eventually be worked into soft ground.

The Lake Trail

The heavily used trail around Greenbelt Lake has been surfaced for the most part with bank run gravel and crushed stone. Wear and water erosion are the principal maintenance problems for the trail. Except at the dam, the trail is constructed along the sides of hills, and water naturally flows across the path, washing dirt and sand into the lake. While special work has been done in the worst areas, most of the path is subject to erosion. Each year the city buys tons of gravel or stone for the pathway. Over the nearly 30 years of the path's existence, the amount of materials used, if known, would probably be an astounding figure.

On occasion, the city has used cinders on the lake path. A cinder surface is popular with joggers. However, cinders are quickly pulverized into powder from use and if spread over soft spots, can become a nasty black muck. Like all fine materials, cinders are subject to erosion.

"Unnatural" Materials

Two types of materials which are considered "unnatural" are frequently used for walkways. Both are forms of concrete and contain for the most part sand, gravel or crushed stone. To become concrete both use a binding material, Portland cement (which is made out of processed limestone and clay) or asphalt. Portland cement concrete, if properly done, is extremely durable and provides a level non-

State's Attorney, Police Discuss Crime Fighting Plans

by S. R. Cherry

Alexander Williams, Jr., State's Attorney for Prince Georges County, was joined in Greenbelt on February 11 by area law enforcement officials to highlight recent law enforcement efforts by his office and area police departments. Williams told the audience that his office is promoting a restitution plan designed to "make defendants pay for themselves." He answered questions from area residents.

According to Williams, law enforcement efforts have been successful in leveling off the number of open air drug markets operating in the county. Officials are confiscating property items that are increasingly more valuable, an indication says Deputy State's Attorney Deborah Johnston, that a "higher caliber" of criminal is now being affected. Johnston implied that stepped up enforcement has forced drug transactions inside and decreased the number of lower level street dealers.

Williams outlined Maryland's nuisance abatement statute, a new program which enables community associations to shut down suspected crack houses by witnesses filing complaints, with the state's attorney's office. The program targets people who are found guilty of dealing drugs, or whose children are dealing drugs, for eviction from their residence and a possible judgment for restitution to the property owner. Under the statute, landlords who are found guilty of habitually renting to drug dealers are also subject to court action.

Violinist Jan Turkiewicz Dies

On Sunday, February 14 Jan Turkiewicz died of cancer at his home on Greenhill Road. His death came almost 64 years after he was born into a Polish family, traceable back to 1683, long distinguished in the fields of music, public service, and religion. He continued the tradition of accomplishment.

Jan Michal Turkiewicz was born April 17, 1929, in New Castle, Pennsylvania, to Father Antoni Turkiewicz and Nellie Papiaciak Turkiewicz. He and his family moved about as his father served as priest to a number of Episcopal churches, finally moving to Miami, Florida, in 1938. After graduating from Miami Senior High School, Jan earned a degree in violin performance from the Julliard School of Music in New York City, graduating in May, 1950. In June of that year he began a three-year tour of duty with the United States Army Band. After his honorable discharge, he entered the George Washington University in Washington, where he studied electrical engineering. On August 22, 1959, he married fellow musician Jean Louise Peters.

Jan joined NASA's Goddard Space Engineer Flight Center in 1961 as an engineer, working on such projects as TOMS (Total Ozone Mapping Spectrometer), a satellite measuring ozone in the earth's atmosphere; the OAO (Orbiting Astronomical Observatory); and the 1975 educational satellite which permitted people in rural India to talk to doctors for medical advice. He was a violin teacher in the Turkiewicz School of Music, which he established.

A Sunday School teacher, Jan served on the vestries of several Episcopal churches: Saint Paul's Church, Foggy Bottom; Saint Philip's Chapel, Anacostia; Saint Philip's Church, Laurel; and, most recently, Saint Michael and All Angels Church in Adelphi.

Jan was able to complete his life in his own home with the help of his family and friends, and with the special assistance of Hospice of Prince Georges County.

Jan is survived by his wife, Jean, and by his daughters, Betsy Hirsch, of Berwyn, Pennsylvania, and Diana and Rachel Turkiewicz, both of Greenbelt; and his mother, Nellie P. Turkiewicz, of the Greenbelt Nursing Center. Other survivors are his younger brother, Witold Turkiewicz, professor of music at Samford University, Birmingham, Alabama; and his wife, Marie; eight nieces and nephews; and a myriad of friends in all walks of life.

Jan, with his family, has been a contributor to culture and progress in this community. In 1962 he was an early member of Greenbelt Citizens for Fair Housing, which struggled to eliminate discrimination in the Greenbelt housing market. This endeavor included many efforts to bring together and help people of different backgrounds and circumstances.

School of Music

Jan and Jean and later their daughters established their successful school of music, where an entire generation of musicians has been raised; this studio continues serving the community. Jan was instrumental in the formation of the Prince Georges Chamber Music Association, which gave hundreds of musicians at all levels of development support and inspiration in the world of music. He was coach to dozens of string quartets in Prince Georges County, and served as concertmaster of the Prince Georges Philharmonic for five years. He and his family have also contributed to the Greenbelt community with annual concerts involving colleagues, students, and friends under the auspices of the Greenbelt Arts Center.

Jan was an erudite, humane, funny, honest scholar of the old school. He read and discussed and was up to date in the newest ideas in science, philosophy, religion, and literature. A powerful force for justice, he carried out high standards with compassion and dignity.

A memorial service will be held on Sunday, February 21 at 2 p.m. at St. Michael and All Angels Church, 8501 New Hampshire Avenue, Adelphi. In lieu of flowers the family asks that donations be given to the Hospice of Prince Georges County, 96 Harry S. Truman Drive, Largo, Md. 20772. Phone (301) 499-0550.

Wants Red Light

To the Editor:

For years I've worried about pedestrians, particularly the children, who use the pedestrian crosswalk at Northway and Crescent Roads (near St. Hugh's School).

Drivers rarely stop—or even slow down—despite the flashing yellow light. For some time I've wondered: Why isn't there a flashing red light instead? Drivers do not seem to understand that "Yield to Pedestrians" actually means full stop. (My children are embarrassed that I act like a school crossing guard when we cross. I step out in the middle of the road, hold my arms out, and wait until the traffic has actually stopped before I allow them to cross. Many drivers get angry, speed up, or curse—despite the fact that the yellow light is flashing and telling them to yield).

I can only hope that a red

Co-op Nursery School Holds Open House

The Greenbelt Nursery School & Kindergarten will hold an open house on Saturday, March 13 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. The board, representing parent membership of the cooperative, and staff of the school invite families with children aged two to five to see the school and meet the teachers. The school is located at 1 Hillside Road behind the Community Church. For more information, please call Nancy Grinberg at 301-572-2257.

The school offers both morning and afternoon nursery school classes. For the 1992-93 school year, children from two to three may attend two day classes in the morning or afternoon. Other nursery school classes for three and four year olds meet three and five days a week. The school also offers a unique kindergarten class which meets in the afternoon. Co-oping parents and paid aides keep the adult-to-student ratio low.

The school is accredited and licensed by the Maryland State Department of Education. The curriculum for all classes follows the guidelines set for developmentally appropriate practices by the National Association for the Education of Young Children. In addition, the children have a good time in a safe and caring environment.

The Greenbelt Nursery School was established in 1942 as a non-profit, cooperative nursery school. It is owned and run by the families attending the nursery programs. Parent participation is truly the heart of the school. Their volunteer work enables the school to provide a well-rounded program for a relatively low tuition. Options are available, however, for those who can devote few or no hours in the classrooms.

Plans for 1994 include moving to the new community center with part-time and full-time programs. Three large classrooms in the center will house part-time nursery school (hours from 9 a.m. to noon and noon to 3 p.m.), a full-time option (9 to 3), extended hours for those requiring care (7:30 to 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.) and a morning kindergarten.

light will help. Occasional police surveillance would also be useful to ticket those who do not stop for pedestrians at the proper crosswalk.

Greenbelt City Council and police: Can we consider this suggestion before someone gets injured or killed? The volume of traffic keeps increasing every year, and it is a truly dangerous situation. It can't be that expensive to change a yellow light to a red one, and it just might save a life. Connie Arnold

The Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club is holding a registration for spring soccer (Youth born in 1979-87), softball (Girls born in 1979-83) and baseball (Boys born in 1977-80) over the next two weeks. Sign-ups are scheduled for Saturdays, February 20 and 27, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., at the Greenbelt Youth Center.

However, parents of current or former club members may register their child by phone during these next two weeks by calling Mel Scites, the club's registrar, at: 441-8689, or register at either of the two noted sign-ups. New members need to register at one of the two noted sign-ups, be accompanied by their parents, and bring a copy of their birth certificate and a small recent photo for an ID.

The number of teams depend on the number of youths registered and coaches available.

Registration is on a first-come basis and volunteers are needed to coach. Those youths registering for spring soccer may also register at this time for either softball or baseball (if within age bracket). Practices for spring soccer will start within a couple weeks after sign-ups; softball and baseball about April 1.

Fees are charged. For further information call (202) 310-1066.

Tutoring Program At Center School

Once upon a time, there was a young student at Greenbelt Center Elementary School who had two wishes. One wish was to have someone listen to that child read. The second was to feel very special.

OASIS (Older Adult Service and Information System) Inter-generational Tutoring Program is designed to fulfill these wishes. The group is looking for senior citizens who have one hour a week they are willing to devote to a student in first, second, or third grade. During that hour, the senior citizen will assist a child with writing and reading his or her own experience stories. A training session will explain the process, answer questions, and help assist seniors before they begin on March 8-10 from 9 a.m.-12:30 p.m. at Center School.

Readers interested in being a positive influence in a child's future should call OASIS at 559-6575 and enroll as an Inter-generational Tutor. Then Betty Tinner, Volunteer Co-ordinator, will call to provide more details.

Volunteers Needed

The Alzheimer's Association of the Metro area needs volunteers during the day to staff informational booths/tables at health fairs within Prince Georges County.

Arts Center Offers Excellent Production in Caine Mutiny

by Barbara Likowski

Herman Wouk's "Caine Mutiny" came alive again for a few hours Friday night in the Greenbelt Arts Center's excellent production of "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial." For those of us who had read the book and seen the movie this was yet another successful rendition of a thought provoking story that kept us interested and thinking to the very end — and afterward.

The Arts Center's version differed from other productions in that not only white males were included in major roles. Several women fit their roles so well and helped the story along, they seemed to belong there. The difference did not attract our attention.

Jill Aline Cheilik, as the defending attorney, Lt. Greenwald, was in the forefront of these women. Her role called for strength and she gave it. One never doubted her ability as an attorney nor questioned her motives even when she seemed to be getting nowhere. Far from lovable she came over as the kind of no-nonsense lawyer who was needed if not liked. Her image somewhat tainted by the job she had to do she nevertheless managed to convey to the audience her real integrity.

Three other women stood out—Trix Whitehall as the very knowledgeable, self-assured Capt. Southard who knew all there was to know about minesweeping, Hopi Auerbach, as a doctor of psychiatry and Jeannette Connors, a sophomore Lt. Jr. Grade. Their uniforms were trim, all were poised and each acted in such a way that we were interested in what they had to say.

That is not to say the men were not good. They were. Some of them very good.

Norman Grant as Lt. Com. Challee, prosecuting attorney had perhaps the most difficult role. Convinced that he had a cut and dried case, and finding it not to be so, he was able to make us feel his frustrations. Steve Lotterman was Lt. Commander Queeg. We disliked him, pitied him, were angry at him, and yes, sometimes we even liked him. But most of all, we listened to him and waited for him to roll the balls in his hands and then discovered it wasn't any big thing. We didn't really care about that.

We really disliked Lt. Keefer for his better than thou attitude and for another reason that is better found out by listening to him oneself. And we liked Lt. Maryk (Stephen Cox) even though he seemed so very naive. These two became their characters and influenced our emotions. They were aided by a good supporting cast.

Director John DiMeo and other members of the production staff are to be commended. The setting of the Greenbelt council chambers was well chosen. It all added up to an enjoyable evening in spite of many uncomfortable insightful moments.

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello Again!

Somewhere along the line we all have had some type of brake service; we see it all the time—a complete brake job for X-amount of money. Ever wonder just what a complete brake job consists of? Brake pads and shoes, and maybe resurfacing the brake rotors or brake drums, and possibly wheel bearing service. The thing that concerns us here at the repair facility is that there is a lot more involved in the brake system that needs to be looked at on regular maintenance intervals.

When choosing a repair facility for brake service, the first thing you usually ask yourself is whether to minimize the repair or completely go over the system. What I mean by this is, consistently we are asked how much will it cost just to replace brake pads or brake shoes. When we present a verbal quote, it sounds different because we take into consideration a full brake inspection and evaluation of the system to define future problems. This type of approach works well for us because there is a whole lot more to brake systems nowadays than before, and there is potential for problems to occur if the inspection is not performed correctly.

If your vehicle is more than four years old, it's safe to say that you already have had some type of brake service. With age and the type of driving done today, it's important to pay attention to specific areas, such as the hydraulics, wheel cylinders, brake calipers, and flexible brake hoses. With all this in mind we also have to consider the hardware that holds the brake components to the wheel. There are springs and clips that rust and get weak and could even break. On older vehicles specific attention is required to inspect for rot and rust holes in the steel lines that connect the system.

Did you know that hydraulic brake fluid is moisture absorbing? This means that when moisture is present in the brake fluid, the fluid eats it up so the system doesn't freeze up. After a period of time the fluid needs to be replaced because it becomes contaminated which, in turn, causes the internal hydraulic components to wear out prematurely.

When we get into these types of brake combinations, we consider a complete brake service or inspection, not just replacing brake pads or shoes and then thinking we did something! If all your vehicle needs is the basics, these types of repairs work great.

TILL NEXT TIME

THINK PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE !!

slip walking surface. Much of the original concrete walkways built 55 years ago in the original part of the city are still in use and in good condition.

Bituminous concrete is not quite as durable and becomes more difficult to acquire and maintain a level surface. Because it is less rigid, it will bend; instead of bridging a soft spot, it will settle into it; if a tree root grows under it, it is more apt to simply develop a bump than to break up. For woodland paths, this can be an advantage.

Both types of concrete are more expensive than stone or rock, but considering their low maintenance requirements, are cheaper in the long run.

A Special Path

In the mid-1960's, the city installed a path from Ridge Road to Lakeside Drive between the 4 and 6 courts of Ridge. The path goes down a steep hillside. While constructed of bituminous concrete, most of the walk utilizes a cold mix rather than the customary hot mix. The mix also contains fairly large sized crushed stone. Because the hillside was so steep, the city roller used to compact and level the surface would only go downhill and had to be trucked back up to the top for the next roll. This resulted in the asphalt's being minimally rolled, thus it was left with a less than smooth surface.

This path has a somewhat irregular surface that is textured by the stone it contains. It has the gray color of asphalt, however, not that different from the color of the original blue-stone. The pathway collects water that flows onto it and channels it to a storm drain just before its lower end at Lakeside Drive. Because the path is not heavily used, much of the pavement is covered with vegetation.

Although this is not a "natural path" made of "natural materials," I believe it blends as well as any path with the surrounding woodland. To me, the subdued gray with a leaf overlay blends better than the potholed, muddy gashes created by foot trails. Its irregular surface provides a more natural feel, while not being so bad as to be hazardous. The textured surface provides good footing. Erosion is minimal. To my knowledge, the city has not performed any maintenance on the path surface since it was built over 25 years ago.

Criteria

There are good reasons for using different kinds of path materials in different locations, but being "natural" should not be one of them, because paths and path materials aren't natural. Public paths and walkways should be designed to accommo-

Police Blotter

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

As a man was trying to deposit a money bag in the night depository at the First National Bank around 10 p.m. on February 9, another man came up to him, demanded the money bag, and told the first man to get into his car and drive away. After getting the money bag the robber ran away. He is described as black, 6', 175 lbs., 26 years old, wearing a brown leather jacket, a black baseball cap, and dark colored pants.

A 17-year-old resident youth was arrested and charged with robbery, theft, and assault and battery around noon on February 5 after he robbed someone in a bathroom in an office building in the 7700 block of Greenbelt Road and a passerby called date the uses to which they are subject, to provide for the safety of the users, to minimize the environmental impacts, and to minimize the cost of building and maintaining. Pathways should be aesthetically pleasing as well.

We also should remember that we live in a city of 20,000 active people concentrated in a small area, and not in a wilderness. What we do should serve the needs of our entire population.

the police. The youth was released pending trial.

A 39-year-old resident man was arrested and charged with battery on February 3 after police responded to a report of domestic violence in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Terrace and observed injuries near the right eye of the man's wife and listened to her claim that her husband had struck her several times with a closed fist. The man appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was released pending trial.

Officers responded to a report of unknown trouble in the 100 block of Westway around 7 a.m. on February 10 and found an incidence of domestic violence. As a result, a 34-year-old non-resident man was arrested and charged with battery. He appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was held on $1,500 bond pending trial.

A breaking and entering of an office suite in the 7500 block of Greenway Center Drive was reported around 10 p.m. on February 8. A woman working late heard a prying noise at the rear door and called the police. Then, a man walked into the lobby area, looked at her, and left the building. He is described as black, in his twenties, 5'9", with a stocky build, wearing a green Army jacket.

A green, four-door, 1976 Chevrolet Nova, Md. tags ADT682, was reported stolen from the 6200 block of Springhill Drive on February 3.
